Anna and the Mummy

by Anita N. Amin

Mom told Anna after breakfast, "Let's set up the front porch for fall."

"Okay. Kitty can help, too." Anna called her kitten, but Kitty didn't come. "Have you seen Kitty?" Anna asked Mom.

"I saw her in your bedroom before breakfast," Mom said.

"I'd better go find her," Anna said.

"Okay. Meanwhile, I'll go get the scarecrows and pumpkins." Mom went to the garage.

Anna went to her bedroom. She looked around but didn't see Kitty. "Kitty," Anna called again.

Still, Kitty didn't come.

Anna checked her closet. No Kitty.

She looked behind her door. No Kitty.

She looked under her desk. No Kitty.

Then, she saw some white yarn poking out from under her bed. "How did that get there?" Anna pulled. The yarn kept coming. Anna kept pulling but there was no end to the yarn.

Finally, Anna looked under her bed. "Kitty!" She pulled Kitty out from under the bed.

Kitty was tangled in the white yarn.

"You look just like a mummy!" Anna laughed. "I think that's what you'll be for Halloween."
